New ACHS principal shares love of teaching

by Shelley Spillman
News Editor

Chris Glass, who was recently named Anderson County High School principal, can personally speak to the positive impact of teachers. A grade school teacher inspired him to pursue a career as an educator.

"I had a wonderful math teacher that inspired me to pursue a career in education and make a difference in the lives of young people," Glass said in an email interview. "I've always enjoyed working with young people and had a strong passion for math during my high school years."

Though there were 12 applicants who were considered for the ACHS principal position, Sheila Mitchell, ACHS superintendent, said it was Glass's passion and proven track record of dedication to the students of ACHS that made him the best candidate. Prior to his current role, Glass served as a math teacher for nine years at ACHS and served as an associate principal at the high school for three years.

"Mr. Glass is motivating and is always focused on making decisions in the best interest of students," Mitchell said an email. "He is dedicated to Anderson County High School and wants to ensure students are motivated to achieve at high levels and are provided opportunities to excel in academics and extra curricular activities."

An administrator role has also been a goal for Glass, and he said he grateful for the opportunity to impact students in a different way.

"I've always wanted to work my way up the ladder and eventually become a head principal," Glass said. "On of my fears when I went into administration was that I would lose the personal relationship I had with the students. However, I've found that it has enabled me to impact more students and play a much larger role in the culture and atmosphere of the school."

He said the best part about a career in education is the ability to help students succeed in life beyond their time at ACHS.

"It's extremely rewarding to get an email, a phone call, or a hug in Walmart showing appreciation from a former student. That's what we get into this profession for and why it's so rewarding," Glass said.

Spillman joins The Anderson News team

As a journalist, Shelley Spillman considers herself a "collector of narratives."

"It's not about me. I tell the stories of people and things that impact the community," she said.

Shelley Spillman

Spillman, who became news editor of The Anderson News Thursday, has worked for 2 years at daily newspapers, primarily covering education and business beats.

The Indianapolis native obtained her bachelor's degree of journalism at Indiana University Purdue University Indianapolis. After graduation, she became the education reporter for the Frankfort Times in Frankfort, Ind.

"We're very happy to have found Shelley," said The Anderson News Publisher Chris Hamilton. "Her experience easily qualified her for this position but her attitude and philosophy about her role as a journalist sealed the deal. We expect her contributions to help lift our news product to another level."

It was there that Spillman learned a great deal about how daily newspapers operate. She went on to become temporary editor of the paper and had the opportunity to wear every hat in the newsroom.

"It was a heavy responsibility but I learned a lot in a short time," Spillman said.

Afterwards, she became an education and business reporter at the Glasgow (Ky.) Daily Times. There, she covered five county school districts, local business growth, photography and layout and design. She said she loves that she has a job that enables her to meet all sorts of interesting people.

"I've met senators, congressmen and even the cast of A&E's 'Duck Dynasty,'" she said. "No two days are the same in journalism. The everyday people I've met, such as farmers, are also fascinating. I learn so much from them."

Of all the stories she's covered, Spillman said the strangest was a story about prison inmates clogging city sewer lines by flushing down their jumpsuits and other items. City officials had a large expenditure for installing a metal grate to catch items inmates flushed.

"A resident near the jail actually found a bright orange prison jump suit coming through their toilet. That's how they knew this was happening," she said. "This profession has to be approached with an open mind because you never know what will happen."

Memorial Day: It's back in for Anderson County

Board of Ed adjusts school calendar for rest of this year

By Chris Hamilton
Publisher

Anderson County students and their families can plan a picnic after all now that Memorial Day has been added back to the school calendar as a day off school.

The Anderson County Board of Education voted to add Memorial Day back to the school calendar as a holiday and end school Wed., June 4 during a special-called meeting Tuesday of last week.

The change was made possible by the passing of House Bill 211, which implemented emergency provisions related to school calendars because of the unusually high number of days missed because of inclement weather during the 2013-14 school year.

HB 211 simplified the calendar requirements for school calendars to a single goal in 2013-14 - achieve a minimum 1,062 hours of instruction. School districts still get to decide the final day of instruction and Director of Student Services Derek Shouse presented the Board with four options for wrapping up the current school year.

In the end, the Board created its own fifth option.

Graduation for Anderson County high school seniors will be Thurs., June 5, at 6:30 p.m.

Because the school district had already converted some non-instructional days, such as some spring break and professional develop-

GRADUATION IS JUNE 5

During the meeting, the Board voted to schedule high school graduation for June 5 unless June 4 was available. Shouse confirmed later that graduation will be Thurs., June 5, at 6:30 p.m.

In other matters, the Board:

- Approved Aug 13 as the first day of school for School Year 2014-15 with Oct. 13-17 as fall break and March 30-April 3 as spring break. The last day of school would tentatively be scheduled for May 21.
- Approved a request by Anderson County High School teacher Randy Adams to take 25 FFA students to the Kentucky FFA Leadership Training Center in Hardinsburg, Ky. April 11-12, an overnight trip.
- District transportation will be used but the cost of the trip will be paid from FFA funds.
- Approved Aug. 12 as the first day of school for School Year 2015-16 with Oct. 5-9 as fall break and April 4-8 as spring break.

ment days, to instructional days, it had some flexibility.

Shouse presented four proposals.

- Option 1 - Leave the calendar in its current format and simply drop 2 days from the end of the school year. School would end June 3 and graduation would be the

Financial controls primary weakness in fiscal court audit

by Shelley Spillman
News Editor

A state audit of Anderson County Fiscal Court revealed weaknesses in internal financial controls for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2013. Each year, an audit report is released to identify non-compliance with laws, regulations, contracts and grants of county fiscal courts. The auditor is obligated to "comment on material weaknesses involving internal control over financial operations and reporting."

The report, conducted by State Auditor Adam Edelen, revealed a few issues including: "lack of appropriate coding" and "sufficient documentation" of credit card purchases, missing invoices and one occasion of not bidding out for vendors for a purchase of more than $20,000, which is a violation of state bid laws.

Missing invoices/inaccurate deposits

The report found three missing invoices, one not included on the bill list presented to fiscal court and one did not include a purchase order.

Receipts were not given to park patrons for collection of sports registrations, field rental and fundraiser/donations collected.

Edelen also noted that daily deposits were sometimes mathematically inaccurate and no supporting documentation was provided with summary forms submitted.

Credit card purchases

Several purchases on a Walmart credit card ranging from $305 to as much as $853 under the vague coding of "office supplies."

Soda and other food were coded to "training" were purchased by the EMS department with no additional detail as to what type of training. Bills were often paid late, resulting in late charges, and sales tax was paid on numerous occasions.

There was no evidence of review and approval on every purchase. A Visa bill of $106 for safety vests for EMS was paid twice.

Purchase orders filled out after the statement is received and purchases have been made.

"Due to the lack of detailed review of receipts supporting credit card charges, the reasonableness and/or allowability of the expenditure cannot be determined; thus, (ACFC) cannot ensure purchases are valid and credit cards are not being abused," Edelen said in the report.

Anderson County Judge Executive John Wayne Conway said processes are in place to help ensure control over credit card spending.

"Credit cards are only issued to the department heads for use within the normal purchase order system. Extra effort has been devoted to improving ACFC control over credit card expenditures," Conway said in the report. "Potential purchases must receive authorization to ensure there is sufficient line-item budget availability. All charge slip documentation and explanation of unusual transactions should be attached to the purchase ticket and the individual charges must be reconciled to the monthly credit card statement."

While Edelen recognized some financial controls in place, including a review of checks and preparation of receipts logs by Conway, he said they did not seem sufficient to ensure all receipts, deposits and checks are presented to the ACFC for approval.

Expenditures more than $20,000

On one occasion the ACFC made a purchase for oil, fuel and EMS vehicle maintenance that cost more than $20,000 and it was not bid out in accordance to state law. Kentucky Revised Statutes state that purchases for materials, supplies, equipment or services totaling more than $20,000 must be

PETA alleges Turtleman abused coyote in Waddy

Complaint stems from Animal Planet episode

by Lisa King
The Sentinel News

Animal advocates are investigating a report of animal cruelty that is alleged to have taken place in Waddy last spring during the filming of an episode of Animal Planet.

Delcianna Winders, deputy general counsel for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, said in May 2013 a coyote was trapped and transported to a location in Waddy where the show, Call of the Wildman, starring Ernie "Turtleman" Brown Jr., was filmed.

She said that the coyote was apparently abused for the 3 days before and during the filming, adding that the show was structured to make it seem like the coyote was wild and they were trying to capture it.

"It's chased around, obviously very terrified and in distress, and then dragged by the tail by the star of the show and then dragged around the room and repeatedly lifted up by the tail until it's tossed into a cage," she said. "PETA has filed a complaint with the Kentucky Wildlife Agency, as well as with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services. We believe that various laws were violated by leaving an ailing animal in that cage for 3 days. I did hear back from the Kentucky agency [Fish and Wildlife] who assured me that they will investigate this."

Officials from Fish and Wildlife did not return phone calls from The Sentinel-News.

However, no one in Waddy seems to have heard about the incident or even that an episode of Call of the Wildman had been filmed there.

"This is the first I've heard about it," said Waddy Fire Chief Darrell Brown.

Ron Lois, president of the Waddy Ruritan Club, said the only thing related to wild animals he heard about were the animal attacks on livestock in late 2012.

Former Animal Control Director Rusty Newton said he has not heard anything from Fish and Wildlife about the matter.

"If Fish and Wildlife had heard about it I'm sure they would be contacting us but we have not heard anything from Fish and Wildlife," he said. "I've not received any word at all."

Winders said that PETA officials learned of the abuse through an investigation launched by Mother Jones, an independent news organization focused on investigative and breaking news.

An article published by Mother Jones March 24 states that in an episode titled "Lured into Danger," which first aired in July 2013, Brown lured and trapped a coyote while the cameras were rolling in a barn purportedly owned by an animal psychic. The article said the segment was filmed May 10 in Waddy, 3 days after the photo of the trapped coyote was taken in Bowling Green by an unidentified source.

Newton said that if the incident were brought to his attention, Shelby County Animal Control would investigate it.

"It would be for us to investigate it, yes, but it would left up to law enforcement to bring charges," he said. "For us, as county government, that would be the sheriff's office, but if they turned it over to Fish and Wildlife, it would be entirely up to them."

Sheriff Mike Armstrong said he had not heard of any reports of animal cruelty involving a coyote.

"I'm not aware that we're looking into anything like that," he said.

Newton said that outside of animal cruelty, any other charges would up to law enforcement.

"First of all, you have to have evidence and find out exactly what happened before you can file charges," he said. "So without having any information, it would hard for me to even estimate what that would be."

Officials from Animal Planet did not return phone calls from The Sentinel-News.

Glass

Glass's 13 years at the high school has allowed him to have close relationships with the students, and he really enjoys that. Ross Cox, a senior at ACHS, said Glass used to be his elementary school football coach. For Lindsey Bowman, ACHS senior, Glass's new role isn't a big change. She's grown accustomed to seeing Glass around and greeting him in the mornings as a student aide.

Some of Glass's former students have even come back to take on teaching roles at the high school. He said he loves working with new educators to help them fine-tune their skills in the classroom.

Though Glass was only officially named principal on March 28, he already has some ideas of areas he wants to focus on. His main goals are to implement a community extended school services program, increase accountability scores, get ACHS in the top 10 to 15 percent of high schools in the state, work with local businesses to supply students with more opportunities for real work experiences and work with ACHS staff to focus on data to assist students and improve core instruction.

Mitchell has no doubt that Glass will accomplish these goals and more.

"Mr. Glass has been an asset to Anderson County for a number of years. He is committed to excellence, and I am confident he will lead ACHS to peak performance," she said.

Spillman

Spillman said her favorite story she wrote was about a homeless middle school student who won her school's spelling bee. Afterwards, the student's teachers reported an overall improvement in her grades and temperament.

"I got to chronicle this students' dramatic growth in confidence and as a student," she said. "It's was of those moments where I thought 'This is why I do what I do.'"

Spillman moved to the area after her husband took a job in Lexington. She said she's excited about her new role with The Anderson News.

"I love meeting new people and learning new things," Spillman. "I'm eager to see what experiences I have at The Anderson News."

evening of June 3.

Option 2 - Add 10 minutes of instruction to 32 days and school would end May 30 with graduation May 31.

Option 3 - Add 20 minutes of instruction to 40 days and add Memorial Day (March 26) back as a day off. School would end May 30.

Option 4 - Add 10 minutes to 12 days and add Memorial Day back as a day off. School would end June 3.

With all options, teachers would still work until June 6.

"Several parents have said that Memorial Day was very important to them," said Shouse. "I've even had senior parents tell me they want Memorial Day and they don't care what day school gets out."

After discussion about how useful adding minutes to days would be and the logistics of getting students to school earlier or home later, Board Vice Chair Roger McDowell proposed a fifth option - don't change anything besides giving back Memorial Day as a day off and ending school June 4.

"After May 30 and testing is over, they're done anyway," said Board Chair Scott Brown.

McDowell asked Superintendent Sheila Mitchell how to make the days after May 30 useful. Mitchell said the days after testing are used for transitional programs, such as introducing students to next year's teachers and, in some cases, beginning work on next year's content.

Final 2014-15 kindergarten registration is this Monday, April 14

The final kindergarten registration date for the 2014-15 school year is April 14 at the Anderson County Board of Education from 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

Students are eligible to attend kindergarten if they turn 5 years old on or before Oct. 1, 2014. Registration is required for all students, including those who are currently attending pre-school at Sparrow Early Childhood Center.

There are currently nine kindergarten classes at Sparrow Early Childhood Center and three kindergarten classes at Robert B. Turner. Students are assigned to a school based on household address. If parents have childcare in a different district, there is an application process for requesting a change. These are approved on a first come, first served basis and are limited. Late registration will limit access to possible changes.

Early registration is also essential for district and school planning. Each year, staff is assigned to schools based on students who are registered. If for some reason a parent is unable to register their child by April 14, parents must contact the board of education as soon as possible so the district can accommodate to the parent's schedule.

The Anderson County Board of Education has determined that full-day kindergarten provides the best opportunity for students to be competitive. However, the state only funds half-day kindergarten. Additional funding must come from local funds. As staff is assigned, there is little room for error financially increasing the importance for parents to participate in early registration.

All those registering will need to provide the following documentation prior to school beginning Aug. 13:

- Valid birth certificate.
- Up-to-date immunizations exam. and physical exams.
- Proof of an eye and dental about

Scholarship are available to those providing early childhood education

Kentucky's child care providers and those who train child care providers might be eligible for the Early Childhood Development Scholarship to further their college education. The scholarships are available to those who work at least 20 hours per week or provide training in early childhood development at least 12 times per year for an approved organization. Kentuckians employed as a preschool associate teacher in a state-funded preschool program are also eligible.

Recipients must be working toward an associate's or bachelor's degree in early childhood education or other approved credential. Depending on funding, the scholarship will pay up to $1,800 for tuition each year. Students can not take more than nine hours of classes per semester.

To apply, students must submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid and an Early Childhood Development Scholarship application. The FAFSA is available at www.fafsa.gov. The scholarship application is available at www.kheaa.com. To complete the scholarship application, students must register for a MyKHEAA account. After registering, sign in to MyKHEAA, choose Account Access then select Apply Online.

The application deadline for summer classes is April 15. The deadline for fall classes is July 15.

The scholarship is administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority, the agency that administers state aid programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship.

advertised for a bidding process.

"ACFC watches for individual purchases that exceed $20,000 and complies with the state bid laws. Occasionally, multiple purchases aggregate more than this $20,000 limit, as happened during FY 2013 with fuel and vehicle maintenance," Conway said in the report. "This was purely an oversight that was unexpected and unintended. Great care has been taken during this administration to be fair with all vendors."

Some spending exceeded budget

Road Fund was exceeded by the budget $438,506, AEMS Fund by $14,378, Capital Outlay Fund by $3,500 and Emergency 911 Landline Fund by $23,070.

"Disbursements' exceeding the budget in the Road Fund was an accident," Conway said. "ACFC will strive to not repeat this mistake. There was sufficient revenue to cover the spending; however, there was no budget amendment to cover this spending."

In a phone interview on Friday, Conway said the ACFC has been dedicated to improvement, and it's working.

"Our finances are great. We have nearly doubled surpluses in the last three years," he said. "We've taken steps to make things better, and we'll get there."

Election section will have valuable information for Anderson voters

Vote or keep your mouth shut. Clear enough?

Ever notice how the most vocal critics are the ones who do the least to educate themselves or participate in the processes that lead to decisions? We come across this often in the wild, wacky world of newspapering. Not-so-Jolly Joe storms the gates with fire in his eyes. This board or that committee will kill this community if its members have it their way, he rants. A few questions later, we learn that he heard something in the supermarket that stoked the fire in his heart but has never attended a meeting, visited a leader, wrote a letter, made a phone call... sigh.

We love opinionated people. We're opinionated. Have to be if we're going to foster critical thinking amongst our readers as journalists. But active citizens earn the right to rant and be heard. Idle citizens can rant all they want but they're a peanut butter sandwich without the jelly, in my opinion. Arguing a point of contention without having taken any steps to know, well, the truth is just a down right inefficient use of energy and oxygen. Same goes for bragging about a leader or group's decision just because they've tattooed themselves with a particular affiliation.

So, as if you didn't see this coming, I'm urging people to vote. Actually, I'm begging people to vote. And don't just vote for the name you recognize or your golf buddy. Vote for the person whose views are closest to yours and whose version of leadership mirrors your version. You get a rare shot at this ever so often. Don't waste it.

We're going to do our part.

When our Wed., May 14 issue comes out, it will go to every household in Anderson County, including the ones that are not currently subscribers. One hundred percent coverage, we call it.

The issue will include all sorts of election information, including profiles and thoughts about community issues from candidates, endorsement letters and other valuable data.

The ground rules are simple.

Candidates, you're invited to stop by our office Mon.-Fri., 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and complete a questionnaire before Tues., April 30, 5 p.m. The questionnaire will need to be completed here so come when you have time to stay. We'd also like to have a head and shoulders shot, preferably one that you provide and like, but we'll take a picture, if necessary.

Political ads are due Fri., April 25. To place your message, e-mail jwatson@theandersonnews.com or call 502.839.6906 x-26.

Readers, you're invited to send us a letter telling why you support a candidate. We will run them in this special issue and they will run in the order they arrive at our office. E-mail your endorsement letter to news@theandersonnews.com. You can also mail or drop off endorsement letters to our office at 1080 Bypass South Ste. 3, Lawrenceburg KY 40329.

Letters are limited to 500 words. And yes, we will count them and edit them for length, if necessary. The deadline for an endorsement letter is Thurs., May 1, 5 p.m.

We'll be publishing these ground rules repeatedly in upcoming issues and with our social media vehicles. The deadlines are firm.

Fair and balanced reporting and being the trusted news source for Anderson County is our mission. We believe that providing a well-packaged election section is the best way to present to you your options on Election Day and treat all candidates and vocal supporters equally.

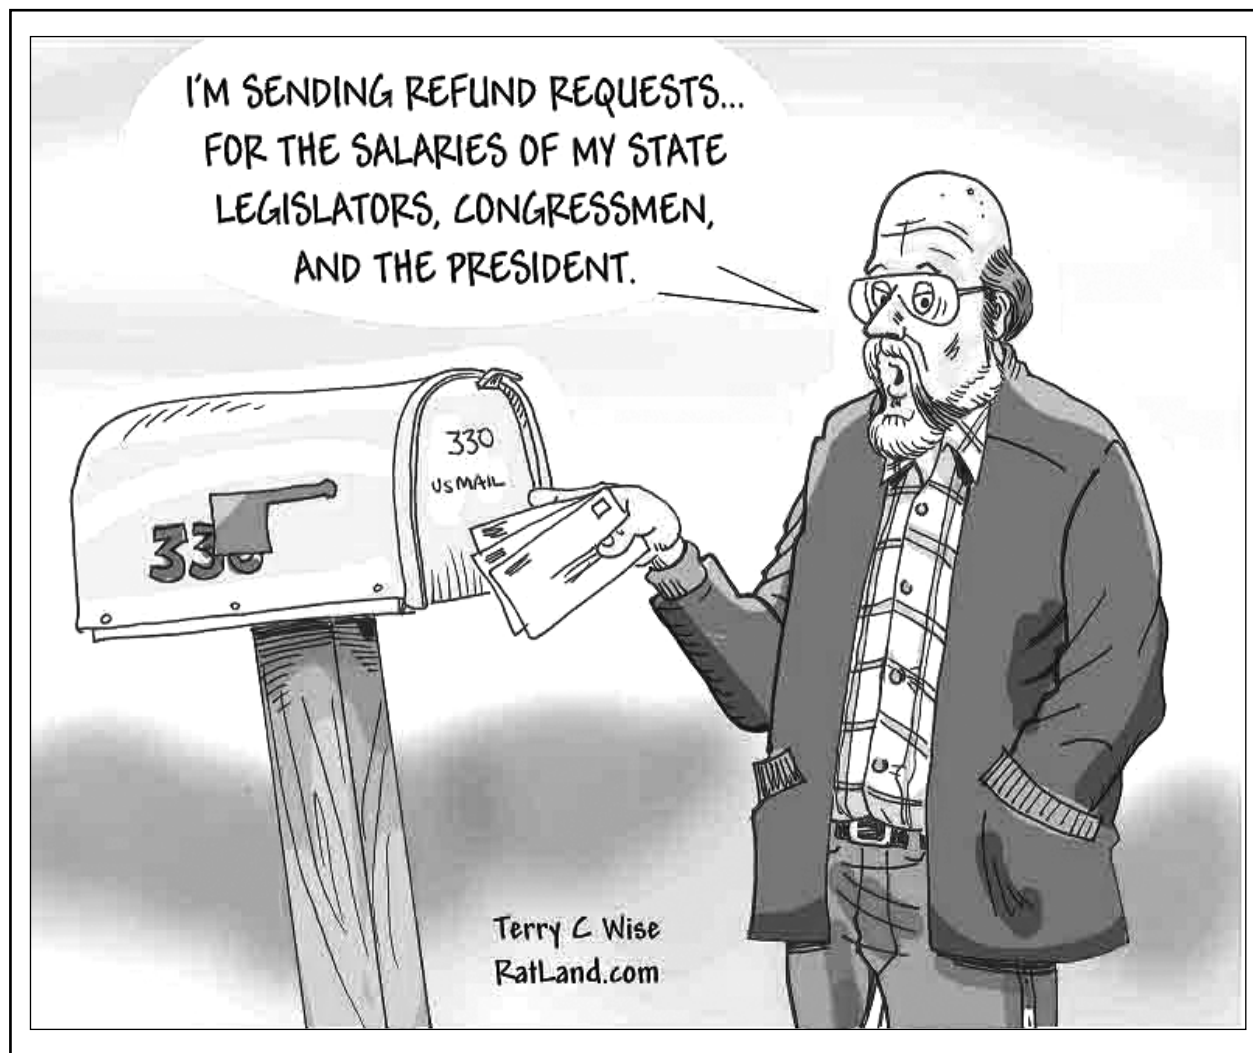

Oh, and don't forget to vote Tues., May 20.

The teachers who shaped me

New News news editor... schweh... was inspired by educators and her parents

As early as elementary school, I can recall having a passion for writing. I remember using a notebook to meticulously record classmates' comments and behaviors at lunchtime. I had an innate curiosity about everything. It's safe to say that I was destined to have a career as a reporter.

I worked toward my dream of becoming a writer when I obtained a bachelor's degree in journalism from Indiana University Purdue University Indianapolis.

It is impossible for me to mention who I am today without talking about my amazing parents who pushed me to succeed, a grade school tutor named Margaret Crisp, who never accepted the words "I can't," and my mentor, Joe Boyce, a former senior editor

The late Crisp was my math tutor from junior high through high school. She taught me to be the best I can be. When I would dare to utter the words "I can't do this," she kept me at her house until my attitude improved. On one occasion, I refused to complete my math problems because I said I was incapable of understanding it. She kept me at her house until 10 p.m. that night and, magically, I was able to figure out the algebra concepts that eluded me prior. Crisp always won in a battle of willpower. I learned to love that about her.

She dedicated her life to education because she cared so much. She died 2 years ago. The church where her service was held was packed with standing room only, full of "her kids" that she taught and the many lives she impacted.

My path crossed with Boyce at IUPUI where he worked an adjunct professor in the School of Journalism. He began his career in 1966 as the first African-American reporter for the Chicago Tribune. He went on to become the deputy chief for Time's New York Bureau and a senior editor for the Wall Street Journal. Did I mention he's also an accomplished jazz musician?

Boyce always has a way of making me think and he has the best stories to share from his many years of journalism. Boyce is the most accomplished person I've ever met and also the most humble. He will forever remain my journalistic compass of morality and ethics.

The appreciation of these great teachers in my life made me interested in education reporting. My first education reporter job was at the Frankfort Times in Frankfort, Ind. Later, I also became the temporary editor.

From there, I became the education and business reporter for the Glasgow Daily Times in Glasgow, Ky.

My husband accepted a job offer in Lexington and we relocated to the area.

I am very excited to be the news editor for The Anderson News. I can't wait to share the stories of people in Anderson County.

Chamber of Commerce political forum is May 1

The Anderson County Chamber of Commerce will host a political forum for all candidates running in the May primary election Thurs., May 1, at Anderson County High School starting at 6:30 p.m.

This is not a debate. The content of each candidate's speech will be directed to the businesses and citizens of Anderson County. All candidates will be given a maximum of 4 minutes to speak.

Prior to the debate and at intermission, candidates can interact with the general public and pass out material in the foyer area.

"Part of our responsibility is to give our members and the community information to make an informative decision," said Chamber Pres. Pamela Rice Brough. "We do not and will not endorse any candidate. We do, however, try to gauge needs, interests and concerns of our businesses and community and a political forum is a tool to help facilitate that effort. It is our intent to provide a venue where candidates can get their message out to the businesses and residents of Anderson County so they can make an educated decision come election time."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Land owners, tell representatives to support Sen. Higdon's SB 14

On March 21, with a bipartisan 75-16 vote, HB 31, passed the House. Senate Leadership refused to assign this bill to a committee or allow a vote on Sen. Higdon's related SB 14.

In an effort to protect land owners' rights, Sen. Higdon filed floor amendments to three different bills, which is a total of five bills that Senate Leadership didn't allow to advance.

On March 31, he filed an amendment to a bill being considered on the Senate floor. He asked for a suspension of the rules because he wasn't able to give 24-hour notice. Sen. Thayer asked Sen. Stivers to rule the motion out of order, which he did. Thayer and Stivers will argue that they acted properly.

The reality is if they wanted the property rights legislation to receive a vote, this was their chance.

The eminent domain legislation affects every land owner in the state and is in line with Kentucky's statute and constitution. It doesn't effect on the state budget and won't stop any project. It has bipartisan support in the House and Senate, is endorsed by Governor Beshear and has been requested by the community. Six bills were filed, any one of which would do the job, and a small number of individuals has prevented the Senate from having a vote.

If you're a concerned land owner, call the legislative line (800.372.7181) before April 14 and tell your representatives to support Sen. Higdon's and Rep. Floyd's efforts to protect property rights for all Kentucky landowners.

Family Court is a broken system and painfully frustrating process

Since Judge David Myles took the bench of the Family Court Division of the 53rd Judicial Court in November 2006, I have waited to write this letter.

If you think this issue doesn't concern you because you don't have children affected by the Family Court, think again. The children whose lives are shaped by the sentences imposed on them by this Court are your neighbors, your students, your babysitters, your store clerks and your future.

With elected officials, we have opportunities to tell them how we feel about issues and we can find out about their opinions as well. We give feedback and interface with the officials through phone calls, letters, e-mails, personal appointments, etc.

One would think any person given the power of the Family Court should be vetted and researched.

The reality?

You can't talk to the judge.

You can't write to the judge.

You can't know the true judicial opinion unless you are willing to park yourself in the department of records and read each decision on every case.

According to the Administrative Office of the Courts, there is no data collected on outcomes of cases in family court. In this technological age, I struggle to believe there is no mechanism to collect data that can be disseminated to the public to educate them. However, anecdotally, fathers fare much better than mother. Hmm, what a surprise.

Few of us who marry ever expect to divorce. And if we could realistically "put our differences aside for the sake of the child," we would probably stay married. We come to the court for justice, presumable that last bastion of civilized recourse. Yet I now know that the court doesn't dispense justice, only a chance at justice. And when your money runs out, so does your child's chance for justice. We don't come to the court to play "Deal or No Deal" with out children's lives.

This painfully frustrating process has taught me that the child protection system is not about child protection at all. Simply put, this system is completely broken. It is ripe with cronyism, a lack of common sense and a lack of dedication to child welfare. The child protection system is but a "cash flow" for bottom-feeding attorneys, family therapists and counseling service providers. Wild animals do a better job of protecting their young.

The system is not about doing what is in the best interest of the child because no one in the court is truly invested in the child's welfare or is held accountable for outcomes.

Do any of you in the system even wonder if you got it right? What do you think your odds are at making the right decision that is in the best interest of the child? I dare say that job performance would absolutely not pass muster in the private sector.

And what is the penalty when you don't get it right? Know this, you are accountable for the decisions you make that affect these children during the tender developmental years in their lives. If your moral compass doesn't guide you to shoulder this tremendous responsibility with serious conviction, then shame on you.

Your antics are being played out before young, impressionable eyes. As long as children remain pawns in your strategic games, don't be surprised if these children grow up to be angry, disrespectful, troubled and resentful adults.

Do not be fooled by Myles' name recognition and photos of him surrounded by smiling children or his reported activities with CASA. The "rubber meets the road" in the courtroom. It is in this venue that his demeanor is superior and insulting. His sarcasm, disdain and hateful criticisms rub salt in our very painful wounds. His dismissive and derogatory actions are directed at the women and children of divorce. Clearly, stereotypes and profiling judgments guide his decisions.

A living wage is an equal voice - poverty must be reduced

by Luz Vega-Marquis, Pres. & CEO
Marguerite Casey Foundation

Take a look at your bills. What do you pay for food, housing, clothing, health care, utilities and transportation? How much would it take for your family to just get by? Could you make it on $15,000 a year? $21,000? What would your family have to do without to make ends meet?

What exactly does it take to make it in America?

The working poor are not fundamentally different nor do they practice some kind of magical math that allows them to support their families on wages that would sink your own.

This year, President Obama called for a raise in the federal minimum wage from $7.25 to $9 an hour. The controversy that followed was as predictable as it was irrelevant to those with the most at stake - the low-wage working poor. As usual, voices of those most affected have been glaringly absent. Also missing is any discussion of the bread-and-butter question - What is it actually like to live on $7.25 or $9 an hour? Does either of these numbers constitute what working families need and deserve?

Although the terms “minimum wage” and “living wage” are sometimes used interchangeably, their meanings are quite different. A minimum wage is the lowest a business can legally pay. A living wage is what its workers need to meet their families’ basic needs, to stave off the choice between a gallon of gas and a gallon of milk.

A full-time worker at the federal minimum wage makes $14,500 a year, placing him or her below the federal poverty line if that worker is supporting a family of two or more. A $9-an-hour minimum wage would push that annual income up to $21,000. But if you look at that “raise” in inflation-adjusted dollars, it leaves today’s minimum-wage worker making significantly less than he did in 1968.

Low-wage workers, despite the “fuzzy math” of the minimum-wage debate, cannot spin paychecks of straw into middle-class gold. The working poor do what they must, whether that means living in substandard housing or making do with low-cost, low-nutrition food. But his or her bottom-line needs are no different from anyone else’s.

President Obama’s savviest move might have been his call for communities to act on their own, passing living-wage ordinances at local and state levels. In Washington State, for example, legislators have introduced a measure to raise the state’s minimum wage from $9.32 an hour to $12 an hour by 2017.

This livable-wage issue is a priority for the Marguerite Casey Foundation. So when we found out that the general manager of the hotel we had booked months in advance for a staff retreat helped lead the campaign against a minimum-wage increase, we were taken aback. It was too late to cancel our reservation so we opted to do what we had each day since the foundation’s inception - We would wear our values on our sleeves... literally.

The morning of the retreat, 25 staff members arrived at the hotel, all wearing T-shirts saying, “WE SUPPORT A LIVING WAGE.” The hotel’s general manager soon sought us out.

But he had not approached us to debate a living wage. His concern was narrower. “Are there more of you,” he said.

In the short term, it was easy enough to reassure him that, no, there were no busloads of protesters heading for the hotel.

But the truer answer is, yes, there are more of us, families across America who believe in the promise of the American Dream.

How could we explain that all we wanted was for those who slept in beds and ate food made by minimum-wage workers to question policies and priorities that leave those workers struggling to feed and house their own families? And for businesses like his to recognize that it takes a work force to grow a profit line. No matter how good the product, a business is only as good as the people it employs. Don’t they deserve more than minimum wage?

A recent USA Today/Pew Research Center poll found that nearly two-thirds of Republicans (64 percent) and more than nine out of 10 Democrats believe government should take action to reduce poverty.

If 25 of us wearing T-shirts stating our support for a living wage rattled the administration of a hotel, what might the 46 million people living in poverty in this country achieve working together?

Perhaps they could move the country in the direction where most Americans stand.

Case pleads not guilty to perjury

By Shelley Spillman
News Editor

Carolyn Case, the 66-year-old grandmother who was charged in February for tying up her 3-year-old granddaughter for up to 16 hours a day, appeared in court March 18. Case waived a formal trial arraignment and pleaded not guilty for a separate charge of perjury.

Though Case was already sentenced to 5 years in prison without possibility of probation in the child tying case, she might face an additional prison sentence of up to 5 years for the perjury charge.

As reported by The Anderson News Feb. 19, Case was charged Feb. 5 with one count of first-degree perjury, a Class D felony, after reportedly attempting to falsify her financial status to obtain a public defender for the child tying case. According to court documents, Case committed perjury when she “made a material false statement, which she did not believe, in an official court proceeding, while under oath required or authorized by the law.”

The date set for the trial on the perjury charge will be April 22, 9 a.m., at Anderson County Circuit Court.

Recap of final week of legislative session

by Legislative Research Commission

There are usually three main drivers of state budget negotiations during the late days of a legislative session - the Senate, the House and the ticking clock. Lawmakers from each chamber had already passed their preferred spending plans when they arrived at the negotiating table recently to hammer out a budget compromise. They arrived with a veto recess drawing ever closer. Sending a budget to the governor before the veto recess preserves lawmakers' ability to override vetoes cast by the governor. As you'd expect with a $20 billion, 2-year spending plan, there are plenty of areas for agreements and differences among members of the Senate and House. The version of the budget approved by the House a few weeks ago resembles the plan Gov. Steve Beshear unveiled in January in many ways. Additional changes were made as the plan moved through the Senate this week, most notably a reduction in the amount of debt the state would incur through bond funds for construction projects. The Senate also removed a proposed 2.5 percent budget cut for universities, while scaling back construction plans at the schools. Community and Technical Colleges would still face 2.5 percent cuts under the Senate plan, but could move forward on many capital projects as long as projects funded by increased student fees were located at the school where the fees were collected. The Senate also proposed stashing an additional $25 million in the state's "rainy day" budget reserve trust fund. Areas of agreement between the Senate and House versions of the budget plan include raises for state employees, full contributions to the state employee pension system, 5 percent cuts for many state agencies, and an increase in per pupil funding for public schools. At the time of this writing, budget conference committee members still had differences to iron out before arriving at a deal that both chambers could agree on. In other General Assembly activity last week, the Senate and House reached a compromise on the "snow days" bill that will give schools flexibility in adjusting their calendars to make up for the unusually high number of days schools were closed due to snow in recent months. In many districts, schools were closed more than 20 days this winter, leading to questions about how long students would need to attend classes before summer break would begin. House Bill 211 will allow school districts to increase the length of their school days to a maximum of seven hours for the remainder of this school year. Schools that aren't on track to reach the required number of instructional hours required by the state by June 6 can ask the commissioner of education to waive some of their instructional hours. Some of the big issues of the 2014 session, including juvenile justice reform and an anti-heroin measure, are still moving through the process and might clear final hurdles before the veto recess starts next week. Citizens can follow these and other issues on the Kentucky Legislature Home Page at www.lrc.ky.gov. Feedback on the issues under consideration can be shared with lawmakers by calling the toll-free legislative message line at 800.372.7181.

Pure Gospel, like pure country, doesn't need fireworks

I enjoy good music. If you take a look at my Spotify playlists, you will see genres ranging from baroque to bluegrass.

If you walk past my office, you might hear the Getty's singing "In Christ Alone" or U2's "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For." I suppose you can say I have a very eclectic taste in music. Perhaps, but I have a special place in my ears for a country tune.

I sat in my recliner this past Sunday evening watching the Academy of Country Music Awards with my wife. We both enjoy a good country song but it seems to me that as the years go by, country music is getting less "country."

Country music is a purist but the highlights of the evening were seeing the King of Country George Strait perform, whose style and sound is distinctly country, and a tribute to the legendary Merle Haggard.

There were many other artists, however, who took the stage, whose sounds contain elements of country, rock and even a touch of R&B.

Their performances were made up of choreographed dancing, pyro-

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

technics and rock star backup singers. It might be good music, it's just not country, at least not pure country.

This got me to thinking about something much greater and more significant than music - the Gospel.

There is a great lack of pure Gospel being preached in many pulpits today. There has been a progression of sorts, in an effort to appeal to a wider audience.

It's no longer considered sufficient to have a simple Gospel. There needs to be a flash and bang, smoke and mirrors and something to keep your attention, something beyond the purity of the Apostolic message.

There is a little gospel being preached, just not the pure Gospel.

The Apostle Paul knew this when he wrote, "I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting him who called you in the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel - not that there is another one, but there are some who trouble you and want to distort the gospel of Christ" (Galatians 1:6-7).

What was the problem? There were those who wanted to add to the Gospel, Jesus plus something else. In Paul's day it was the addition of works of the law to faith in Christ.

Perhaps the greater danger today is a desire today to add relevance and tolerance to the Gospel message of salvation by grace alone through faith alone in Jesus Christ. It is no longer acceptable for Jesus to be the exclusive way of salvation (John 14:6). He can only be a way among many. His teachings on hell (Matthew 5:29-30), marriage and sexual ethics (Matthew 19:1-12) are considered outdated and restrictive bonds that must be cast from us (Psalm 2:3). The veracity and authority of Scripture are being called into question and every attempt to lessen the offense of the Gospel lessens its effectiveness (1 Corinthians 1:17).

The simple, pure Gospel is this. We are sinners in need of a savior. Jesus Christ lived a life we could not live and died a death we deserved to die in order to secure salvation for all who would believe in him by grace through faith (Ephesians 2:8-10).

There might be a lot of bells and whistles attached to the messages today but it's often not the Gospel.

Poignantly, at the end of a show full of flash and bang, George Strait won the ACM "Entertainer of the Year." This tells me there is still a place for pure country in Country Music.

Could it be there is a place today for the pure Gospel? There sure is. It's called the human heart.

CHURCH BRIEFS

New Liberty Easter events

The New Liberty Christian Church youth will present "It All Happened In the City" Sunday.

On April 20, the choir will present "In Christ Alone."

The worship service starts at 10:50 a.m.

"We would like everyone to come and worship with us at New Liberty," wrote Minister Jerry Perry in a news release.

REPENT OR PERISH

Luke 13:3 "Except you repent, you will all likewise perish."

Acts 17:30 "And the time of this ignorance God winked at; but now commands all men everywhere to repent."

Acts 11:18 "Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life."

Luke 15:7 "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repents, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

2 Peter 2:9 "The Lord is not slack concerning His promise, as some count slackness, but is longsuffering toward us, not willing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance."

One can read the above passages and come to the conclusion that repentance or perish is God's ultimatum to all mankind. Faithfulness is not a game with God; it is either turn or burn in the fires of hell.

There are a few things that repentance is not:

1. It is not simply being sorry (2 Cor. 7:10).
2. It is not just reformation; one must bring forth fruits - Matt. 3:8
3. It is not just conviction.

Repentance is a change of heart that brings about a change of actions. Remember the parable of the two sons (Matthew 21:29)? The son repented and went.

If the goodness of God does not cause us to repent (Romans 2:4), His ultimatum should scare us, and that ultimatum is "REPENT OR PERISH."

THOMAS CHOSEN KENTUCKY DERBY PRINCESS

THE WAY WE WERE

50 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Jan. 9, 1964

James L. Farris, 23, was promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant, according to word received by his grandmother, Mrs. A.P. Farris, of Lawrenceburg. The 1958 graduate of Anderson High School was serving in Korea.

James L. Farris, 23, was promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant, according to word received by his grandmother, Mrs. A.P. Farris, of Lawrenceburg. The 1958 graduate of Anderson High School was serving in Korea.

Thursday, Feb. 13, 1964

The well on the Alpha Smith property where drilling had been going on for several days was now 475 feet deep. The gas pocket found Jan. 30 had stopped burning and now gas was being piped from it.

Mrs. Susan B. Rutherford said that gas had been struck before in Anderson County, in the year 1898.

She said her father, the late W.T. Bond, began digging a well on his farm at the south city limits of Lawrenceburg and struck a pocket of gas. It burned for 10 days to two weeks.

She remembered seeing the flame as it burned, she said.

Thursday, April 9, 1964

Amos Glenn Rogers Jr. of Route 1 volunteered for the Armed Services and left Louisville following his induction.

Debra K. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Brown returned home from the Frankfort hospital where she had undergone a tonsillectomy.

Wagon tractor paint was on sale for $4.20 a gallon or $1.30 a quart at Marrs Hardware, P.D. Boone, owner.

Denise Hawkins, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Hawkins and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Sparrow, was to celebrate her sixth birthday on WHAS T-Bar-V Monday morning.

Nancy Jane Geoghegan returned home from the St. Joseph Hospital where she underwent an appendectomy.

Mrs. C.V. McGuire, second grade teacher at Western, was confined to her home for several days with a slipped disc.

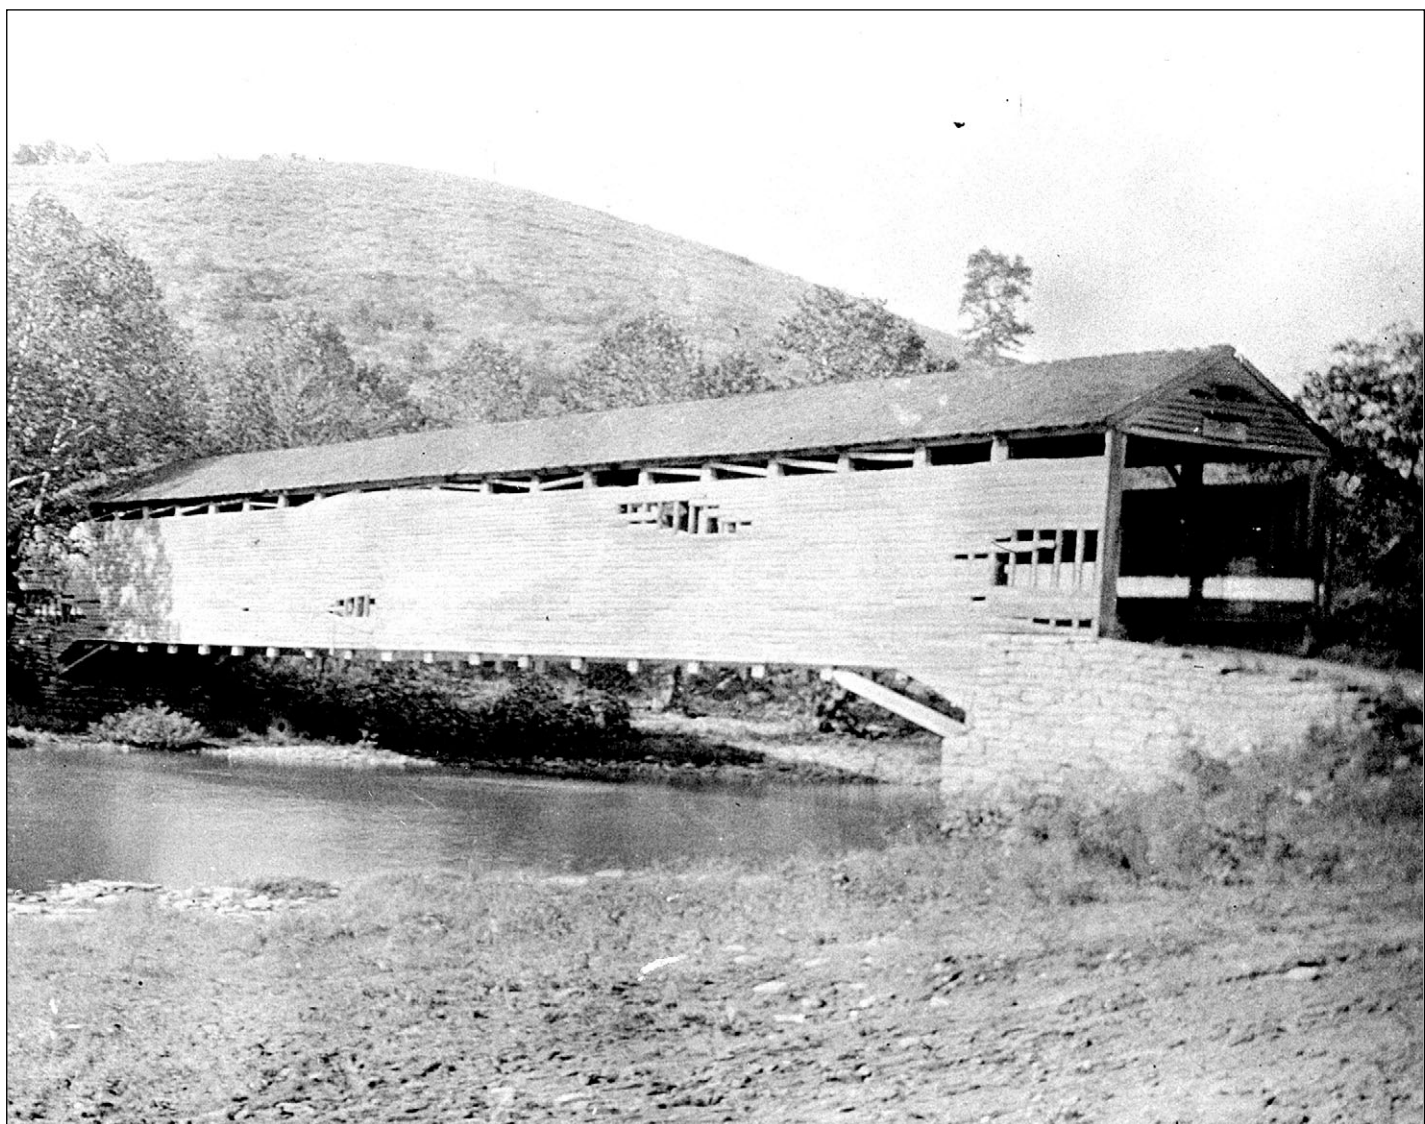

Southern Star bacon was 49 cents a pound at Model Supermarket. Lettuce was 29 cents for two heads and salad items like carrots, green onions were 10 cents a bunch and cucumbers and green peppers, 10 cents each.

Deaths

Mrs. Nancy Jane Coke Nichols, 93, widow of Frank D. Nichols, died at the Frankfort hospital. Survivors included two nieces, Mrs. W.F. Allen and Mrs. Hugh Hawkins.

Jay Bottom, 78, died at his home in California after a long illness. He was retired from the Merchants Ice and Coal Storage Company in Los Angeles, Calif. for about 45 years. Survivors included his wife, Ina Heaton Bottom and four sisters.

Theodore Harvey Hutton, 80, suffered a fatal heart attack at his garden on Gatewood Avenue.

COVERED BRIDGE AT GLENSBORO

The 140-foot covered bridge across Salt River at Glensboro, also known as Camden, was built in 1856. Three years earlier the Court appointed Seneca Gregory LaFair Routt to prepare a draft for a bridge across Salt River at the village, according to and entry in Wyatt Shely's column "Our Heritage." The new bridge was built on piers and made of heavy timber at a cost of $5,000. Occasional repairs kept the bridge in good condition for more than 50 years, but finally the structure began to lean and was considered unsafe by 1920 and was condemned by 1923. The bridge was torn down and replaced by an iron bridge that stood until the late 1970s when a large truck came down the hill and didn't make the curve at the bottom, running into the bridge, knocking it off the abutment and into the water. The concrete bridge that now sits across the river span then replaced it. Mrs. Athel Gash loaned the photo to The News.

He had gone to the garden to plant a lettuce bed. Survivors included five daughters, Mrs. Jesse Medley, Mrs. Willard Mitchell, Mrs. Estill Reed, Mrs. Stanley Perry and Mrs. Dillon Montgomery; three sons, Theodore, Fred and Guy Hutton and two sisters.

30 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Jan. 5, 1984

Seaman Third Class Charles T. Sullivan was honored with a letter of appreciation for his outstanding performance in an operation in the Pacific.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. "Freck" Sullivan.

Thursday, Jan. 12, 1984

Terry Wilder, 36, a North Carolina native, was the new pastor at Sand Spring Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Johnson were to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Louise Houchin, and Mr. Johnson were married January 21, 1943.

He was a retired farmer and she was a retired accountant with the Kentucky Dept. of Agriculture.

Jessica Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Thomas Jr., was chosen as one of the 1984 Kentucky Derby princesses.

Miss Thomas and four other princesses were selected in December from a number of young women from Kentucky and Southern Indiana and were judged by a panel of out-of-state judges.

The five princesses are finalists for the title of Pegasus Queen. The queen and her court will reign over all the events of the Kentucky Derby.

Wednesday, April 12, 1984

Melinda Ruggles, 22, daughter of Ed and Doris Ruggles, qualified for the Miss Kentucky Pageant by winning Miss Lexington at the Opera House.

"I was in a state of shock," said the UK student after she was announced winner of the 24th annual Miss Lexington Scholarship Pageant.

Melinda received a $1,200 scholarship and $2,500 in gifts.

Winners of the pinewood Derby held by the Boy Scouts were Nathan Weaver, best looking car; Anthony Sutherland, first place; Brent Campbell, second place and Stephen Snellen, third place.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 34 has been active in 2014

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 34 participated in the Anderson County Chamber of Commerce Business Expo at Eagle Lake March 22. Auxiliary First Vice Pres. and Chamber Pres. Pam Rice Brough worked to get ready for the Expo and the day.

Unit 34 had a booth for senior members and a booth for junior members. Senior members had a table set up with Legion Family information and applications to join the Legion, the Auxiliary and the Sons of the American Legion. Patriotic-themed baskets were on the table, one with candy and one for raffle tickets to win a free flag and flagpole. A soldier saluting the flag was an eye-catcher, especially for children. Members working the senior booth were Unit 34 President Betty Butler, Nettie Halvorson, Betty Kyle, Margie Gehefer, Dolores Mefford and Shirley Thornberry.

Juniors handed out patriotic items, including rulers with pictures of U.S. presidents, stickers, bookmarks with the Pledge of Allegiance and comic books, including one on the topic of bullying.

Pinkie nails were painted blue for anyone wishing to show support for the bullying issue. Juniors participating in the Expo were Janna Halvorson, Summer Browning, Anna Boyles, Annie McDannold, Hannah Drury, Brianna Melton and Kennedy Darst. Junior Chairmen Christie Halvorson and Robin Browning also attended.

Unit 34 has given the flag and flagpole away as a door prize each year of the Expo.

Legion high school oratorical scholarship contest

The American Legion Area B High School Oratorical Scholarship Contest was held Feb. 9 in Lawrenceburg. Three students competed from Northern Kentucky, Frankfort and Louisville. John Mullins of Frankfort Post 7 served as an escort for the students. Betty Butler and Bobby Thornberry served as time-keepers. There were three judges, all from Lawrenceburg.

Each of the three students competing won in their individual districts to compete in the Area B contest and were each awarded $500 scholarships.

Department of Kentucky Past Commander David King, who has served as chairman of the Oratorical Scholarship Program for many years, said this was the 77th year for the contest.

The winners in Areas A, B and C then competed March 2 at Post 7 in Frankfort. The Department Oratorical winner was a young lady from

Saturday is Ladies' Day in Lawrenceburg

Attention ladies, this Saturday is Ladies' Day in Lawrenceburg. Get your friends together and put on your hats and boas, dress up, dress down .... but dress for fun!

Ladies will be getting a passport and participating in all kinds of fun activities, shopping, book signings and a raffle, because there's a lot to offer in Lawrenceburg.

Based on a passport system, ladies can pick up their passports at all participating businesses. A list is available at the Senior Citizens Center, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There will be some home-based businesses set up inside the Senior Center with various items for sale. Several downtown shops are participating as well.

Tourism venues such as Rising Sons Winery, Lovers Leap, Wild Turkey, Four Roses, & Kentucky Gentlemen Cigars will also be on the passport.

Rising Sons will have the authors of "The Wine Everything Book," and "The Saucy Sisters Book of Wine." — The Saucy Sisters will be here from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. signing their books and host a book talk at 2 p.m. Second Chance Consignment will have a DJ playing music..

Each business is offering a special or discount to all ladies with a passport.

For every place of business you visit, you will receive a raffle ticket for the "Best of Lawrenceburg" gift basket that all the businesses have donated items or gift certificates.

Afterwards, you simply drop off your passport at the Lawrenceburg Bed & Breakfast located on North Main Street to receive your raffle tickets. A drawing will be held at 5 p.m., but you do not need to be present.

Kentucky horses prized during Civil War era

Kentucky author Maryjean Wall will present "Between North & South: Kentucky Horses and the Civil War" at the Anderson Public Library Thursday as a part of the Kentucky Humanities Program.

Wall's story is about the love by people for Kentucky horses during the Civil War.

Soldiers, guerillas and outlaws prized Kentucky horse for their speed, endurance and agility in battle. They raided Bluegrass farms with impunity and on one occasion, rode off with arguably the best racehorse in America.

This talk covers a wide range of matters "equine" relating to Kentucky Thoroughbreds, trotters, and saddlers during the war and the Bluegrass farms they came from. The talk also covers racing which took place in Kentucky and in the North during the war years and how the horse actions in Kentucky were negatively affected by the war.

The program starts at 7 p.m. and is free to the public

Ag Secretary announces increased opportunity for producers

Modifications create flexibility for new and existing farmers

Agriculture Sec. Tom Vilsack has announced increased opportunity for producers as a result of the 2014 Farm Bill. A fact sheet outlining modifications to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency Farm Loan Programs is available at www.usda.gov/documents/2014-farm-bill-changes-to-flp.pdf. "Our nation's farmers and ranchers are the engine of the rural economy. These improvements to our Farm Loan Programs will help a new generation begin farming and grow existing farm operations," said Vilsack. "Today's announcement represents just one part of a series of investments the new Farm Bill makes in the next generation of agriculture, which is critical to economic growth in communities across the country."

The Farm Bill expands lending opportunities for thousands of farmers and ranchers to begin and continue operations, including greater flexibility in determining eligibility, raising loan limits and emphasizing beginning and socially disadvantaged producers.

Changes that will take effect immediately include:

- Elimination of loan term limits for guaranteed operating loans.

- Modification of the definition of beginning farmer, using the average farm size for the county as a qualifier instead of the median farm size.

- Modification of the Joint Financing Direct Farm Own-

- ership Interest Rate to 2 percent less than regular Direct Farm Ownership rate, with a floor of 2.5 percent. Previously, the rate was established at 5 percent.

- Increase of the maximum loan amount for Direct Farm Ownership down payments from $225,000 to $300,000.

- Elimination of rural residency requirement for Youth Loans, allowing urban youth to benefit.

- Debt forgiveness on Youth Loans, which will not prevent borrowers from obtaining additional loans from the federal government.

- Increase of the guarantee amount on Conservation Loans from 75 to 80 percent and 90 percent for socially disadvantaged borrowers and beginning farmers.

- Microloans will not count toward loan term limits for veterans and beginning farmers.

- Additional modifications must be implemented through the rule making processes. Visit <http://fsa.usda.gov> for detailed information and updates to farm loan programs.

Study: voting process in Kentucky, Ohio lags nation's

Over the last two presidential elections, Ohio and Kentucky officials improved election performance, shrinking wait times and cleaning up voter registries.

The No. 1 thing both states could still do: allow online registration, according to a Pew Charitable Trusts study. Online registration reduces the potential for error that exists with traditional paper-based systems, saves jurisdictions money and increases the accuracy and currency of the voter rolls, thereby reducing delays and congestion at the polling place, according to Pew.

Indiana is one of only 13 states that allow it.

Pew is the latest to recommend the move. The Presidential Commission on Election Administration has recommended providing online voter registration, as has Ohio's Secretary of State Jon Husted.

Overall in 2012, the study shows Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana fared poorly compared with other states - with only Ohio squeaking into the top half of rankings.

Ohio ranked 24th, scoring a 70 percent on 17 points the study considered; Indiana ranked 30th, scoring 67 percent; Kentucky ranked 39th, scoring 63 percent.

The study comes as Ohio Democrats work to put a Voters Bill of Rights into the state constitution in the November election.

The 2012 data comes two years after Pew Charitable Trusts, an independent nonprofit organization that uses an analytical approach to improve public policy, unveiled the Elections Performance Index, the nation's only comprehensive election assessment.

Pew shared the data with secretaries of state across the country. So far it has shared data from 2008, 2010 and 2012.

The study took into account 17 indicators, including wait times at the polls, availability of voting information online, rejection of voter registrations, problems with registration or absentee ballots, rejection of military and overseas ballots, voter turnout and accuracy of voting technology.

In-person early voting - which is being looked at in several states as Republicans curb hours allowed in prior elections - was not among the information assessed.

"We wanted to evaluate elections based on data, not anecdotes," said Zachary Markovits, Pew's election initiatives manager.

Nationally, the overall average improved 4.4 percentage points in 2012 compared to 2008.

Reduced wait times are the result of every Ohioan's being sent an absentee application, which increased early voting and reduced lines on Election Day.

The General Assembly earlier this year said only Husted could make that decision and that it must be approved by the legislature.

"We're absolutely going backwards," Burke said. "We're going to see a decrease in number of people voting early unless we can get this reversed in courts."

About the Ohio Voters Bill of Rights Democrats are collecting signatures to put an Ohio Voters Bill of Rights into the state constitution. They need 385,245 signatures by July 2 to put it before voters in November. The Voters Bill of Rights would:

- Create online registration.

- Maintain current identification options and expands them to include student identification.

- Maintain a 35-day early voting period.

- Require early voting stations be open the weekend before the election - including the Sunday before an election.

- Mandate that a ballot cannot be rejected due to a poll worker's error.

Pew report findings

- 13 states offered online voter registration in 2012, compared to two in 2008.

- Wait times decreased on average about three minutes since 2008. Florida had the longest wait and the largest increase in wait time in 2012 - up 16.1 minutes from 2008 to 2012.

- Overall voter turnout dropped 3.4 percentage points in 2012 from 2008.

- Turnout percentages in the Midwest and Northeast were higher than in the South in 2012.

- Minnesota and Wisconsin had the highest turnout rates in 2008 and 2012.

Local Wildcat fans show just how Blue their blood really is

Photo submitted

Anderson County resident Ben Gee, right, and his son Tristan, celebrate the Wildcats' win over Wisconsin with Ben's friend Mike Castelli (left), who lives in Dallas. Ben and Tristan flew home Sunday but Ben said the experience was wonderful.

Photo submitted

Anderson County High School student Jessie Currans poses inside AT&T Stadium before the start of the UConn - Florida game on Saturday. Currans has followed the Kentucky Wildcats to the Final Four twice in the last three years.

UK's run really was madness

If anyone from around these parts had made a reservation to travel to the Final Four a month ago, most of us would have thought they were either crazy or just college basketball junkies.

Or maybe Louisville fans. After all, back in early March, it looked like the Cardinals were the only team inside the Commonwealth's borders that would have even a slight chance of playing in Jerry Jones' mansion.

Kentucky? Let's just say that a month ago, most fans would have been happy if the Wildcats just made it past the first weekend of the tournament. Of course, that prospect seemed about as likely as J.R. Ewing becoming a preacher.

But that is what makes March Madness, well, madness.

Unless you have been exiled to the South Pole, you know the story. Kentucky started playing like Kentucky sometime during the SEC Tournament. The Wildcats were probably seeded way too low - an eight? - but somehow regrouped to make that run to Dallas.

The championship game against UConn tipped off after my deadline but I can assure you that the Big Blue Nation was trying to take over Dallas Monday night.

"I would say we outnumber UConn easy tonight," Anderson County High School student Jessie Currans said in an e-mail on Monday afternoon.

Currans and some members of his family joined some other Anderson County residents in Big D over the weekend and were happy to be cheering on the Wildcats in their bid for the school's ninth national championship.

I saw several Facebook posts from Anderson Countians in Dallas, but Currans and Ben Gee were the only ones to respond to requests for photos.

They both say the trip was worth it.

That would be especially true for the blue bloods after Aaron Harrison buried Wisconsin with his last-second 3-pointer. I really don't know how to describe Aaron, other than to say if I am ever in a duel, I hope to grab him to be on my side at about step seven.

Currans knew the feeling Saturday.

"The atmosphere was electric for the majority of that game," he said. "When (Andrew) Harrison fouled (Wisconsin's Traevon) Jackson, the Wisconsin crowd went crazy."

Andrew Harrison ran toward Jackson, who jumped into the UK freshman to draw a three-shot foul. As everyone now knows, Wisconsin had not missed a free throw to that point.

"I thought it was over," Currans said. "After he missed the first free throw, I felt like we had a chance."

That set the stage for Aaron Harrison to become an assassin again.

NBA three-point range. Sight. Cock the trigger and fire.

Boom.

Gee preferred not to be interviewed but did simply say in an e-mail, "What a game!"

Currans was there when UK went roughshod through the tournament back in 2012. That year, it was almost a foregone conclusion that Anthony Davis and company would win the title. The crowning was pretty much a given.

But this ride has been so unexpected. And that might be what makes it just as much fun.

Currans, who said that AT&T Stadium is so big "that you can see it for miles," shows just how Blue his blood really is. Things are not as handy for the Final Four in Dallas, but that made little difference, he said.

"In New Orleans, everything was downtown and in walking distance of each other," Currans said. "Here in Texas, everything is spread out. The Bracket Town and the concerts are in downtown Dallas and the stadium is in Arlington (about 20 miles away) and some of the ESPN broadcasts are in Fort Worth (another 15 miles).

"I really enjoyed both places but prefer the set-up in north Texas... if we win tonight."

Spoken like a full-blooded member of the Big Blue Nation.

CAL Hoops Coach Does It 'His' Way

From staff reports

Humility can be defined as "unassuming, insignificant, meek, modest, not proud or haughty."

Christian Academy boys' basketball coach Cory Robinson certainly exemplifies the essence of each of those references in both his coaching style, his leadership ability and his interactions with others through his personal walk with the Jesus Christ.

Coach Robinson has been an integral part of two state championships in the past four years at the Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg. Most recently, his team won the 2014 Kentucky Christian Schools, Class 3A state championship at the Kentucky Basketball Academy in Lexington. The Rams defeated London Christian Academy 64-52 in the championship game to bring home the title.

Bearcats open journey toward state final

By John Herndon

Anderson County began a football journey which it hopes will take the Bearcats one step further in 2014 when the team opened spring practice on Monday.

Anderson won its second regional championship in three years last fall but fell one game short of the state championship game. The Bearcats will again be one of the teams warranting long looks as a state finalist in 2014.

Bearcat coach Mark Peach expects about 35 players to participate in spring drills. Many of the returning players are exempt from spring practice as they are members of the baseball, track or tennis teams at the school.

Peach said the Bearcats will have 15 school days to get 10 practices in. Peach prefers to work outside, but the team can move inside, if needed.

"We are looking at some new sets offensively that we have really researched this past off-season," Peach said Monday. "This is a perfect time to get a look and see if it might fit our personnel."

Anderson opens the season at home against George Rogers Clark on Aug. 29.

Strong pitching, balanced offense carry Rams to opening victories

From staff reports

Cold temperatures could not stop the Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg baseball team from scoring a victory in the season-opener.

The Rams overcame temperatures in the 30s to rout visiting Grace Baptist, 17-7, to raise the curtain on the season on March 25. After a see-saw start, Christian Academy took the lead for good in the bottom of the third. Michael Cooper delivered a bases-loaded double to score three runs to highlight the uprising and push the Rams' lead to 9-3.

Chandler Royalty, pitching the fourth inning in relief of Zach Dennis, struck out all three batters he faced. Brady Sawyer finished the game, yielding two hits and fanning six.

"Our pitchers did a great job and we were aggressive at the plate getting some timely hits," said CAL coach Matt Sawyer. "We have focused all pre-season on being mentally tough and smart on the field and I think they did a pretty good job focusing and not letting our mistakes turn into bigger mistakes."

For their second game, on March 31, the Rams traveled to Community Christian School, located in northern Kentucky. Community had recorded a walk-off win over the Rams last year, making it a contest CAL had circled on the schedule. "We led the whole game last year and then ran out of pitching and they came back and won with a walk-off win on a wild pitch and we did not want that to happen again," assistant coach Mark Wells remembered.

In a contest that saw several lead changes, Christian Academy prevailed 9-4. Ethan Gray had gotten CAL on the board with a first-inning single. The Rams took the lead for good in the top of the fifth, then scored four more runs over the next two innings to seal things.

Royalty, who got the win, and Dennis combined to strike out 16 but also walked seven for the Rams. Community managed only six hits.

"We overcame our errors while taking advantage of theirs," Coach Sawyer said. "Our pitching was outstanding and at the plate, we made contact and capitalized on their mistakes. I'm especially proud of how our guys stayed mentally focused throughout the game."

of the most successful programs in this part of the state.

Coach Robinson's philosophy is a simple one: "Honor God with your actions and words, and put your teammates ahead of yourself. This basically takes care of the two great commandments in Matthew 22:36-40."

He adds, "I also want them to know that no matter the situation or what their age, I will always be by their side to help them." Robinson believes that leading a team is much more than X's and O's, wins and losses, but most importantly, prepares young people for life and service.

Sophomore Nathan Bain, the KCSSAA tournament MVP when he scored 47 points and pulled down 37 rebounds, provides insight into what drives Robinson's success.

"He makes the focus all about fundamentals and his players working up to their potential," Bain said. "It's never about him. And he makes sure that we understand that playing basketball, like life, is about giving God credit for what we do, win or lose."

Robinson, who is active at Nineveh Christian Church, says that it's the only way he knows how to coach.

"I'm fairly intense when it comes to playing and coaching, but I want our kids to know that staying humble, working hard, caring about those around you, and serving the Lord goes way beyond sports. Those are life lessons," says Robinson, who never played high school basketball.

"We've been blessed at CAL in that we get really good players who have the right mindset and work ethic to make good things happen. I learned a long time ago that without goods athletes with the right kind of attitudes, it doesn't matter how hard you coach, it's hard to be successful."

Robinson's coaching philosophy seems to be working. He rarely loses a player and seems to have the right combination to sustain a winning program. His basketball teams, composed of both Christian Academy students and several who are home-schooled, have found a way to incorporate all of the things that he believes in and teaches them over the course of a season. "The great commission says to spread the Gospel and make disciples. This is my main goal in coaching, making disciples," he says.

Never one to be concerned about hard work, and coaching is just that, Coach Robinson is thankful for the success that his teams have enjoyed. "It does take a lot of time and effort to maintain any level of success," he says.

Robinson is a para-professional who volunteers his time to CAL. By day, he is a mold and die technician at Hitachi Automotive in Harrodsburg.

But when asked how long he plans to continue coaching, Robinson is quick to point out that he doesn't "believe that the Lord is done with him yet. When He is, He'll let me know. I still enjoy the competition."

Coach Robinson is quick to mention that keeping a balance in his life is important to his continued enjoyment of the game. His wife, Michelle, Pre-School Director at CAL, and son, Matthew are the "two most import things in my life behind Christ."

When he's not alone with them, Robinson loves being involved in his church, playing in the worship band and serving others.

While he may not be one to brag on himself, it's clear that those around him are eager to step forward and do it for him.

Assistant Coach Tony Hatton, whose son Caleb was the starting point guard on this year's team, says the team's success is due in large part to Coach Robinson's insistence on total effort from everyone. "From conditioning in the off season, to the up-tempo style of play on offense and defense during the season, Cory insisted that everyone was relentless in their efforts to make this team strong at every position," Hatton says.

For anyone who has come to know Robinson, this relentless effort is a common thread that runs throughout his life and his service.

And, there is apparently no end in sight.

Woodford Tourney not kind to Lady Bearcats

Curry belts two home runs but Anderson drops 2 of 3

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Spring break was not a time on the beach for the Anderson County softball team. The Lady Bearcats dropped two of three games in the Woodford County Invitational Tournament, after being able to enter that event at the last minute.

Anderson had originally been scheduled to play in the Southern Invitational in Louisville but that tourney was canceled.

The Lady Bearcats, ranked 21st in the state in last week's coaches' poll, slipped past Louisville Butler, 4-3, in the tournament opener as Autumn Beasley drove in the winning run in the bottom of the sixth. Beasley went 2-for-3 at the plate.

Anderson's Bailey Curry also went 2-for-3 and smacked a home run while Kaci Currens finished the night at 2-for-2.

Anderson had jumped to a 3-0 lead, but Butler fought back to tie things in the top of the sixth, setting the stage for Beasley's game-winner in a game shortened to six innings due to an expiration of time rule for the tournament.

Mia Aldridge pitched 5.2 innings while Allyson Moore recorded the final out to pick up the win.

"Give Butler credit," said Anderson coach Brent Aldridge. "They started hitting the ball and we made a mistake or two to let them tie the game."

Franklin-Simpson, like Butler, a team that had been receiving votes to be in the Top 25, silenced the Anderson attack in the tournament's second game. Anderson managed just three hits in a 6-1 loss. "Allyson Moore pitched and did well but beside of not hitting, we made three or four fielding errors," Aldridge said.

In the final game of the tournament, Russell overcame the Lady Bearcats with a 6-5 decision to hand Mia Aldridge her first loss of the season.

"She didn't pitch extremely bad and we had a chance to limit the damage but we made some mental mistakes on the field," Brent Aldridge said.

Moore came on to pitch three scoreless innings but the damage had been done.

Curry led the Anderson offense with a 2-run home run.

"This put us at 5-3 on the year," Brent Aldridge said. "It is still early and this weather has been extremely tough on playing and practicing. I gave the girls some off days during spring break week so I was not terribly surprised we didn't play our best."

"I assure you, we will be a force to be dealt with come post-season."

Lady Mustangs place fourth in Frankfort boys' tourney

From staff reports

The Anderson County Middle School girls' soccer team took on the boys over the weekend, finishing fourth in the six-team Frankfort Invitational Tournament. The Lady Mustangs joined the tournament when the organizers needed a team at the last minute.

"We played really well and were close to the championship game," said Anderson coach Daniel Rogers.

The Lady Mustangs finished 0-2-1 in the tourney, falling to Frankfort, 3-1, in the tourney opener as Jenna Bicknell took a pass from Evan Kays for Anderson's only goal.

Anderson tied the Garrard County boys, 2-2, with goals from Yaneli Alvarez and Anna Foley, who also had an assist.

Elkhorn shut out the Lady Mustangs, 3-0, in the tournament finale.

White bass are here, signaling end of Kentucky's harsh winter

Fish moving in Taylorsville Lake, run as far as Glensboro

By Lee McClellan
Ky. Dept. of Fish & Wildlife Resources

It is now early April. If you asked most Kentuckians what it feels like weather wise, they would say it is the first of March.

The warm winds finally began to blow from the South earlier this week and brought the white bass upstream with them.

The spawning runs are finally here. "Last week, in Nolin River Lake, they were up to the Cane Run arm of the lake and should be between Bacon Creek Ramp and Broad Ford by now," said Rob Rold, northwestern fisheries district biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "We've had a lot of warmer, sunny days lately and the water temperature at Wax Marina was 54 degrees on Tuesday."

Water temperatures breaking the 50-degree mark combined with rainfall signal to white bass that it is time to move upstream to reproduce. They need a gently rising river along with sun-warmed water to begin migrating from the main lake into the headwaters of reservoirs such as Nolin River Lake, Taylorsville Lake, Cave Run Lake, Herrington Lake and Lake Barkley.

Nolin River Lake has arguably the best white bass population of any Kentucky reservoir. The really good fishing occurs from Lick Run all the way upstream to Wheeler's Mill. Bank anglers have good access to both sides of Nolin River at the Nolin River Voluntary Public Access Area via KY 728 (Priceville Road) and Kesselring Road. Bank anglers also fish at Bacon Creek Boat Ramp and at Broad Ford.

Boaters should not venture upstream of Bacon Creek Boat Ramp as Nolin River Lake reverts back to the pool and riffle habitat of the pre-impoundment river at this point, risking the health of any boat motor's lower unit.

Local anglers are catching white bass around the KY 248 Bridge in the headwaters of Taylorsville Lake in Anderson County. White bass run as far up the Salt River as the once-vibrant river trading town of Glensboro in spring.

The headwaters of Herrington Lake will be churning with white bass with the warming weather. This historic run spawned lure inventions and a regional reputation for incredible fishing. The legendary white bass fishery in Herrington Lake went through a fallow period in the 1990s and early 2000s, but is now producing good numbers of white bass from 12 to 14 inches long.

The good fishing starts near Bryant's Camp Boat Ramp and upstream into Rankin Bottoms, near the Ky. 52 Bridge between Lancaster and Danville. Bank anglers may access Rankin Bottoms at the Dix River VPA site at the end of Rankin Road off Ky. 52 near the bridge. This site grants over a mile of bank fishing for white bass.

With water temperatures just reaching the low 50s, white bass are moving into the upper reaches of Lake Barkley. They are also hitting in the Cumberland River just below Lake Barkley.

When the flows modulate slightly after the recent rains, the white bass will be active below locks and dams on the Green and Kentucky rivers.

White bass fishing inspires such ardor in anglers because these fish strike practically anything that comes near them during their spawning runs. No other fishing compares to it when white bass are really on and biting. Bank anglers can enjoy fishing just as good as those fishing from boats.

Herrington white bass anglers invented the plunker and fly presentation, originally comprised of a piece of broom handle with an eyelet screwed into it. They tied a piece of heavy monofilament to the eyelet with a treble hook dressed in white marabou at the other end. They cast this rig into the boils of feeding white bass and popped the rod to draw the attention of white bass.

Modern anglers use a white chugger-style topwater with the back hook removed. They tie a piece of light braided or monofilament line to the eyelet of the hook and attach a 1/32-ounce marabou jig or a dressed treble hook to the business end. Some remove both hooks to keep the rig from tangling on the cast. This presentation still catches white bass as well as it did in the 1950s.

White or chartreuse 1/16-ounce marabou or feather jigs suspended under bobbers and allowed to drift downstream also work extremely well on white bass. Adjust the depth of the bobber until it disappears from a fish.

In-line spinners of practically any color, small silver spoons and white 2 -inch curly-tailed grubs rigged on 1/8-ounce lead-head all score white bass.

White bass are either right on top, a few feet deep or just above bottom. The depth you catch them changes from day to day and sometimes from hour to hour. Keep probing the water column until you find them. When they are mid-depth or deeper, the curly-tailed grub is hard to beat.

The white bass are here, signaling this dreadful winter is finally gone for good. Get out in the next couple of weeks for the most exciting fishing found.

That's how many Kentucky adults read a daily, Sunday or weekly newspaper during an average week.

That's more than 5 out of 6 people.

And truth be told, we like to think that 6th person might be listening while one of the other five reads out loud.

HOROSCOPES

Capricorn
December 22–January 19

Stop dragging your feet, Capricorn. An issue needs to be addressed, and you're the one to do it. Amazing opportunities are headed your way at work.

 Uh-huh, Aries. You have far too much on your plate to take on another commitment. Learn to say no rather than spread yourself too thin.

March 21–April 19

CANCER

June 22–
July 22

Stop, Cancer, stop. Throwing money at a situation is not the answer. You need to get to the root of the problem. Look to a loved one for help.

LIBRA
September 23–
October 22

Lovable Libra. You're so nice that people just naturally gravitate toward you. This week that will be a blessing as you meet a childhood idol.

AQUARIUS
January 20–
February 18

Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Take a break from a hobby for a while, Aquarius, and you're sure to return to it with zeal. A fitness goal is revised.

 Brevity is not your style, but it is a requirement for an upcoming meeting. Keep it short, Taurus, and others will listen. A financial endeavor pays off.

Leo
July 23–
August 22

Quiet, Leo. Your questions are valid, but there are no answers at the present time. Leave it be. An engagement goes off without a hitch.

SCORPIO
October 23–
November 21

Get ready to meet your match this week, Scorpio. Someone has been biding their time just like you, waiting for the right opportunity to present itself. Preparation is key.

PISCES

February 19–
March 20

No news is good news Gemini. Embrace the break in the action. The purpose of a plan at work will soon be revealed. Hear it out before you form an opinion.

May 21-

VIRGO
August 23–

Yes, Virgo. Your plan has mass appeal, but some details need to be fine-tuned before you present it. An announcement is made, and not everyone is pleased.

SAGITTARIUS
November 22–
December 21

Unbelievable, Sagittarius. Just when you thought you had ironed out all of the wrinkles, another one appears. Don't worry. It will be the last.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Wednesday, April 24, 2014, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property

(4) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff.

Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder's cost.

(5) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
